

Innovation Highlights

About Our Work

While the Foundation invests its resources and expertise across initiatives that make an impact in the Early Grade Success, College and Career Readiness and Postsecondary Completion areas, it also supports innovative programs that help reform education systems across those three areas as well.

Most often, these initiatives are collaborative in their approach, bringing multiple partners to the table, and they often focus on building public will and advocacy, informing the field of education and building community capacity.

The Foundation's 2013 support of SRI International's Center for Digital Learning in St. Petersburg, Florida, and the Aspen Institutes' Opportunity Youth initiative in Tucson, Arizona, are two examples of Innovative partnerships that are working to support a larger education-reform effort.
